Diploma Supplement

This Diploma Supplement model was developed by the European Commission, Council of Europe and UNESCO/CEPES. The purpose of the supplement is to provide sufficient independent data to improve the international 'transparency' and fair academic and professional recognition of qualifications (diplomas, degrees, certificates etc.). It is designed to provide a description of the nature, level, context, content and status of the studies that were pursued and successfully completed by the individual named on the original qualification to which this supplement is appended. It should be free from any value judgements, equivalence statements or suggestions about recognition. Information in all seven sections should be provided. Where information is not provided, an explanation should give the reason why.

1. Information Identifying the Holder of the Qualification

- 1.1 Family name(s): Blendstrup
1.2 Given name(s): Sarah Michaelsen

6.2 Further information sources

University of Southern Denmark is a research-based university founded in 1998. University of Southern Denmark is a merger of the former Odense University, Southern Denmark School of Business and Engineering, the South Jutland University Centre and Odense University College of Engineering. In 2007 the university merged with HHC Business School Centre. The university now enrolls more than 20.000 full time students (bachelor and master programmes), more than 4500 part time students and more than 800 Ph.D. students. These figures do not include more than 1000 foreign students and exchange students. The university has a staff of approximately 3000 full-time equivalents. More than 1100 are researchers as well as part of the teaching staff.

The University of Southern Denmark has five faculties - the Faculty of Humanities, the Faculty of Business and Social Sciences, the Faculty of Health Sciences, the Faculty of Science and the Faculty of Engineering.

The University of Southern Denmark strives to be an international orientated university with a strong local commitment and is based in five local campuses in the region. The main campus is situated in Odense. The university has a long tradition for research based education at bachelor and master level, but also focuses on continuing education and offers a number of summer courses every year, presenting the latest research. In addition, the university has an Open University department offering part time courses, specially designed programmes and applied courses.

At the University of Southern Denmark basic as well as applied research are given high priority.

Funding comes from the Government, from Danish and international research funds and from co-operation with business corporations, local authorities and municipalities.

Information on the national higher education system can be found at The Ministry of Science, Innovation and Higher Education on www.fivu.dk. ## Qualification profile for:

The Bachelor's Programme in Danish with a Minor in Classical Studies, Latin

The graduate has acquired a number of broad competences within the field of the humanities. He or she is able to delimit a topic and analyse it deploying relevant theories and methods, while systematizing and critically evaluating the knowledge and data relevant to the task. Particular significance is attributed to the graduate's ability, both orally and in writing, to communicate scholarly material in a manner that makes it relevant and comprehensible to various target-groups. The graduate has, furthermore, been trained to participate in cooperative activities and to both offer and receive constructive criticism.

Minor in Classical Studies Latin, Language

Bachelor graduates are trained in the analysis of certain areas within the literary and cultural output of the Roman world, as well as its social and historical context and the classical tradition in Europe and the modern World. The degree provides insight and some experience in working with ancient languages (Latin and Ancient Greek), in working with a chronologically distant culture as well as an introduction to translation theory and literary genres. The bachelor graduate is able to analyse cultural artefacts and has a general knowledge of topography.

Furthermore, the degree provides insight into the relation between myth and history, religious and philosophical methods of thinking, as well as both practical and theoretical rhetoric and also the ability to understand and interpret complex historical connections.

The BA also provides tools for problem-solving in educational and cultural institutions as well as editorial and administrative jobs in the private sector.

Major in Danish

BA graduates possess broad core competences in the subject both in the communication of Danish cultural history, in particular literary history, and in analytical and theoretical work with the Danish language in aesthetic texts as well as those for everyday use. BA graduates can, therefore, both undertake tasks related to research and work in all areas relating to communication. The skills acquired by BA graduates can, in conjunction with an Option, constitute a degree directed towards immediate application in business in the contexts specified.

The BA graduate's competences are based on their knowledge of the Danish language and literature in a Nordic and global context and of the Danish media. They also include, however, a critical ability to reflect that can be applied in the context of other subject areas and communicative processes.
